Here are a few things to keep in mind when choosing parts:

- Start with a used motorcycle. This is the most cost-effective way to get started. You can find used motorcycles for sale at a variety of places, including online classifieds, motorcycle dealerships, and private sellers.
- Choose a motor that is easy to work with. This will save you time and money in the long run. Some of the most popular motors for chopper builds include the Harley-Davidson Sportster, the Honda Rebel, and the Yamaha Virago.
- Don't be afraid to mix and match parts. You don't have to use all new parts to build a custom chopper. In fact, you can save a lot of money by using used parts or aftermarket parts.
- Take your time and do your research. The more you know about the parts you're choosing, the better decisions you'll be able to make. Read reviews, talk to other builders, and compare prices before you buy anything.

Once you've chosen the right parts, it's time to start assembling your bike. This is a complex process, but it can be done with a little patience and elbow grease.

Here are a few tips for assembling your bike:

- Follow the instructions carefully. Most motorcycle parts come with instructions. Be sure to follow these instructions carefully to avoid making mistakes.

- Take your time. There's no need to rush the assembly process. Take your time and make sure that everything is done correctly.
- Use the right tools. The right tools can make the assembly process much easier. Be sure to have the right tools on hand before you start assembling your bike.
- Don't be afraid to ask for help. If you get stuck, don't be afraid to ask for help from a friend, family member, or mechanic.

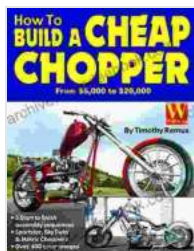

Building a custom chopper can be expensive, but there are a few things you can do to save money.

Here are a few tips:

- Buy used parts. Used parts can be found for a fraction of the cost of new parts. You can find used parts at a variety of places, including online classifieds, motorcycle dealerships, and private sellers.
- Make your own parts. If you're handy, you can make your own parts. This can save you a lot of money, but it does require some skill and experience.
- Shop around. Don't be afraid to shop around for the best prices on parts. You can often find the same parts for cheaper at different stores.
- Take advantage of sales. Many motorcycle parts stores offer sales throughout the year. Be sure to take advantage of these sales to save money on your build.

Building a custom chopper can be a rewarding experience, but it doesn't have to be expensive. By following the tips and tricks in this guide, you can build a cheap chopper custom builder that will turn heads and make you the envy of your friends.
