Chapter 1: Understanding Your Child's Learning Style

4 DIFFERENT TYPES OF LEARNING STYLES
VARC Model
Which Learner Are You?

The Visual Learner
 Learn by seeing

- Do you prefer to use information in order to remember it?
- Do you pay great attention at fully developed?
- Are you easily and sometimes frustrated to work?
- Does explaining something to you come easy for you (sometimes a subject)?

The Auditory Learner
 Learn by hearing

- Do you prefer speaking or listening than reading the book?
- Does making and using tape help you remember facts better?
- Would you prefer to listen to a recording of your class instead of a teacher talking about your class lesson?
- Do you prefer songs to being repetitive statements?

The Read-Write Learner
 Learn through words

- Do you feel reading makes a great way to report?
- Do you like a lot of notes during a class when writing notes?
- Do you write answers often (usually sentences and complete paragraphs)?
- Are you better at doing homework than oral presentations and speaking?

The Kinesthetic Learner
 Learn by doing

- Do you prefer watching things live instead of simply watching DVDs and Internet?
- Are you good at you to do things for long periods of time?
- Are you good at playing activities such as playing games, puzzles, sports, and working out?
- Do you have to actively practice doing something in order to learn it?

Study Tips for Every Learning Style

- Visual: Use diagrams and flowcharts to help you understand the material. Take notes in a structured way. Use color to highlight key points.
- Auditory: Listen to audiobooks and lectures. Participate in group discussions. Record your own voice explaining concepts.
- Read-Write: Take detailed notes. Write summaries and essays. Use flashcards for key terms.
- Kinesthetic: Use physical objects to represent concepts. Engage in role-playing and simulations. Practice hands-on activities.
